When Harry Hackett Nowlan died November 30, 1958, while eating dinner at his home, 636 Sunset Avenue, Evansville, Indiana, he lacked seven days of attaining "three score years and ten" as he was born December 7, 1888, in Cheyenne, Wyoming, but to his friends and associates Harry's personality, character, and cheerful disposition belied his years and he will be remembered as young, jovial, gay, and convivial. Added to these traits, was a disposition of deep sincerity, extreme loyalty, forthrightness, and stability. Harry will be genuinely and sincerely missed. Surviving are: wife, Jessie D.; a daughter, Mrs. H. W. Vanatta, and five grandchildren, Yokohama, Japan.
