

Construction Aggregate Resources in the Federal Territory and Central Selangor

CHEONG KHAI WING & YEAP EE BENG

Department of Geology, University of Malaya
50603 Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia

The Federal Territory of Kuala Lumpur and Selangor have produced 29% of the total crushed rock production in Malaysia. The average consumption per capita in 1998 was 3.74 tonnes of aggregates. It is estimated that the current rock reserve in this area can only cope with the demands of this region for the next 30 years. Thus, the exploitation of aggregate resources must be planned carefully and integrated with other types of landuse.
